Mathematics (including times tables)	I can measuring length using non-standard units.	How wide is your hand? Open your hand as wide as you can and draw round it. Now draw a line from the tip of your little finger to the tip of your thumb (look at page 3 for a picture of this). Choose something in your house or garden you can use to measure your hand, e.g. cereal, small stones, cut up pieces of paper which are the same size. Place these on the line you've drawn and use these to measure the size of your hand and write the measurement. Now try this with someone else's hand or your foot. Challenge! – if you have a ruler or tape measure in your home, try using that to measure the size of your hand!
Writing	I can write about my feelings and the feelings of others.	Look at the pictures of Percy on page 3. How do you think he is feeling? What do you think has made him feel like this? What could he do to feel better? Write about a time when you've felt the same feelings as Percy and what helped you.

Other	Keeping our minds healthy	Today is April Fool's Day! It's a day when people play jokes on each other to make each other laugh. Laughing is really good for you! Try to make someone laugh today. Measuring your hand

1. Open your hand wide then draw round it. Draw a line from the tip of your little finger to the tip of your thumb. Use a ruler or straight edge to do this.

My hand is 5 "and a bit" cornflakes wide.

2. Find something you can use to measure your hand, e.g. pasta or small pieces of paper. Lay the pieces along the length of the line so they touch. How many pieces does it take to get from one end to the other?

How is Percy Panda feeling?

This is how Percy was feeling yesterday.

This is how he is feeling today.

How do you think he is feeling in each picture? What do you think has made him feel like that? What might make him feel better? When have you felt like this and what helped you to feel good again?
