What do you already know about Alevism?

Alevism is a branch of Shi'a Islam that is practiced in Turkey and the Balkans among ethnic Turks and Kurds, and is related to Alawism in Syria. Alevi make up 20% of Turkish Muslims and create Turkey's largest religious minority community.

Alevism emerged in Turkey during the 10th century. Like other Shi'a Muslims, Alevi believe that the Prophet Muhammad's nephew 'Ali Ibn Abi Talib was his rightful successor, and they reject the leadership of the first three "rightly guided caliphs" following the Prophet's death.
