Captain Tom Moore

Some of you may have heard of a person called Captain Tom Moore. He is going to be 100 years old next Thursday. He has raised millions of pounds for the NHS to help fight Coronavirus by walking around his garden lots of times. This sounds easy to us but Captain Tom finds walking very hard and he needs to use something called a walking frame to help him move.

There are many other people who are finding ways to help the NHS, such as Margaret Payne, a 90 year old lady who has raised money by climbing her stairs so many times that it's the same as climbing a mountain.

These people are showing resilience to help others.

Draw a picture to show how you have shown resilience to help other people. Perhaps you have done lots of tidying up even though you didn't want to, or you've been patient and waited for your grown up when they were busy.

Mrs Margaret Payne

Someone from Mrs Fromet's family painted this picture of Captain Tom.
