I can write a diary entry about events from a story.

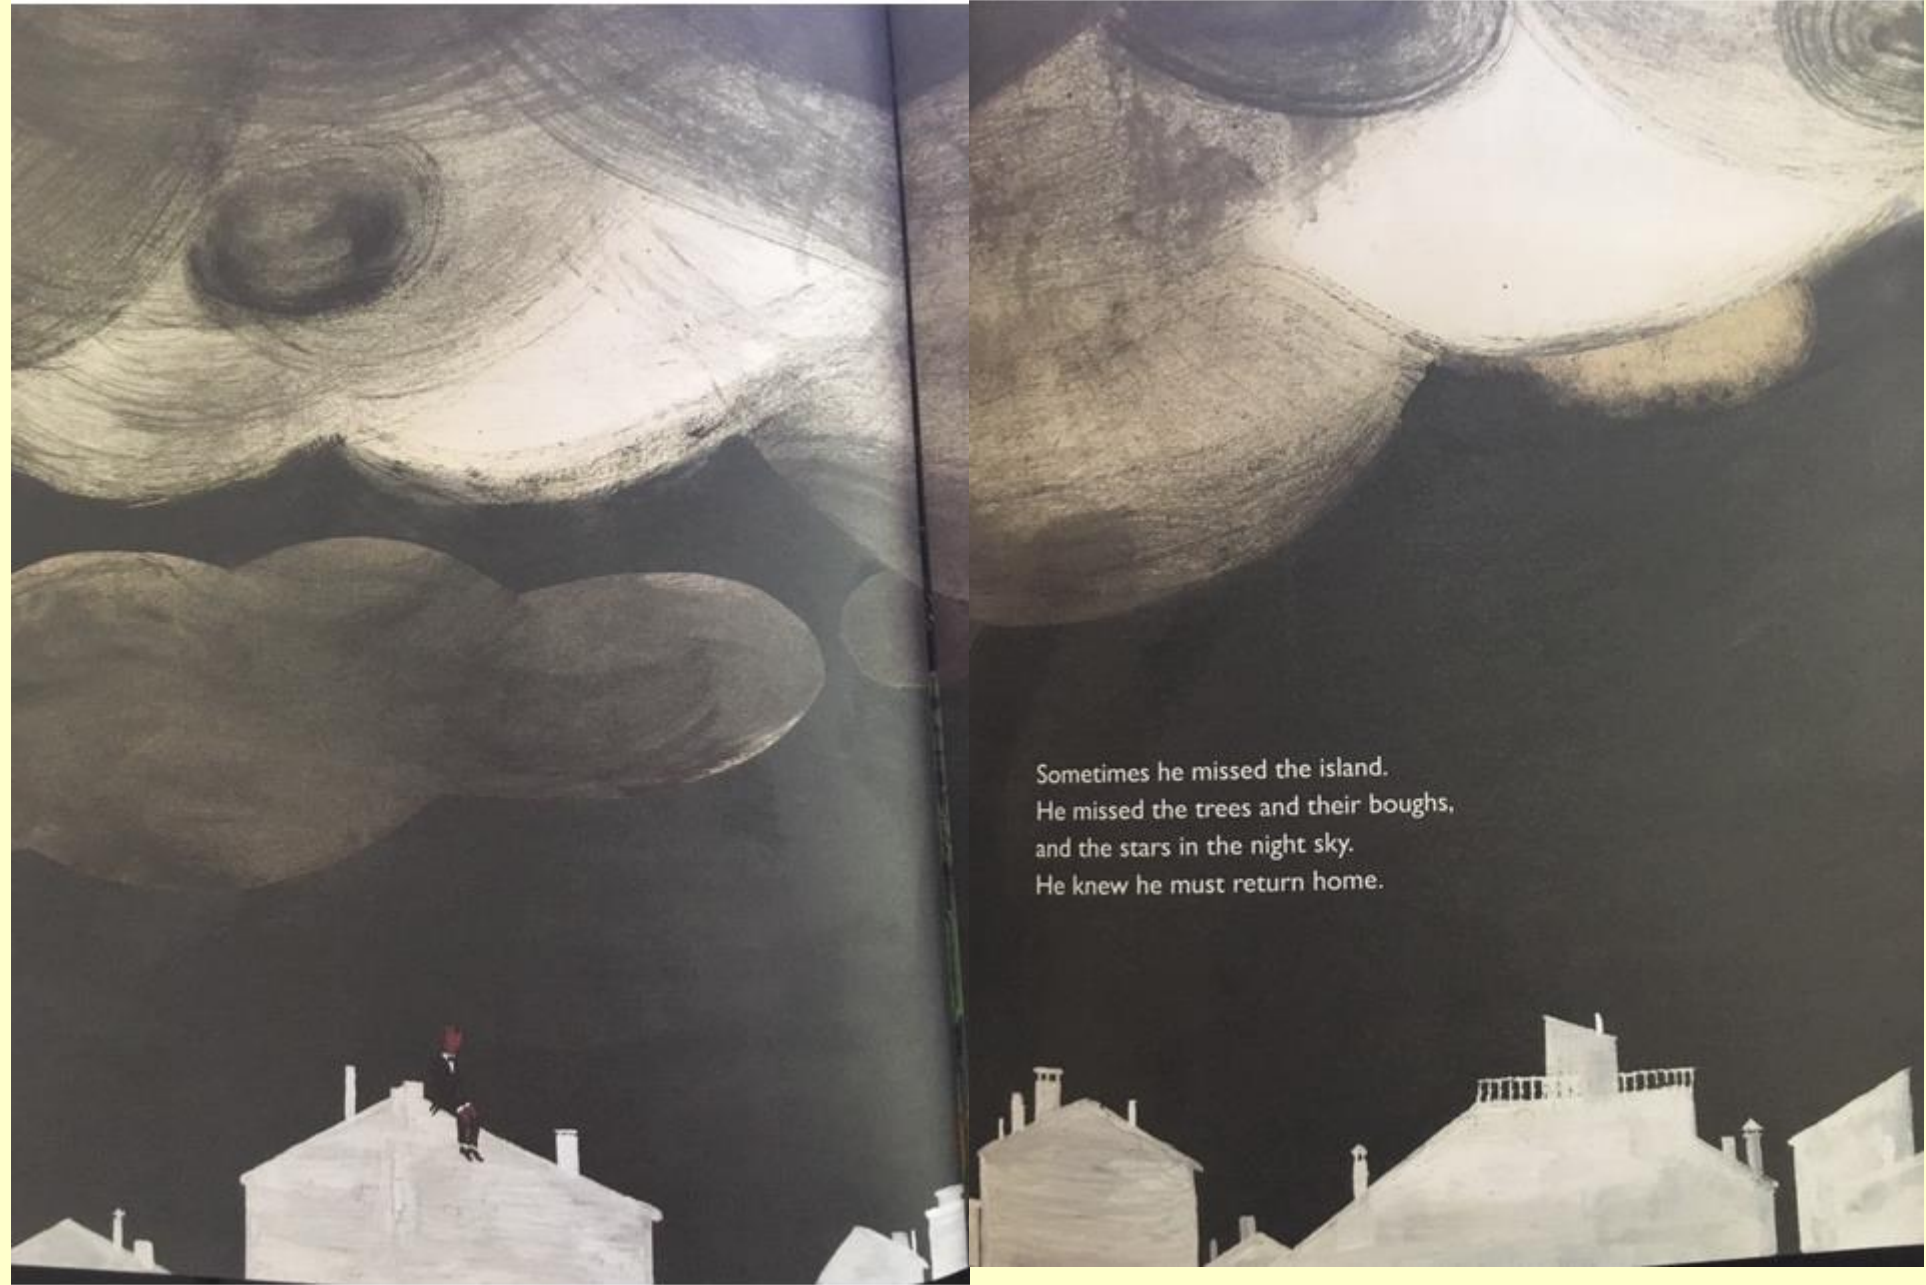

Watch Miss Thomas read the next section of the story.

Look at the image of Jemmy staring up to the sky.

Now look at the image on the next slide and think about how Jemmy's feelings have changed through the story.

Once, long ago, on a faraway island there was a boy.

Some nights he climbed to the tallest branch of the tallest tree to look at the stars. He listened to the lap of the waves and imagined what it would be like to live in the world on the other side of the ocean.

Dear Diary,

Start with dear diary

This week has been incredibly difficult! I only arrived on Monday and this place is like nothing I have ever seen. Everyday I am learning new things and it just all feels too much. There are these buildings that they call houses, they are mostly made of rock and are stacked like towers taller than any tree I have ever seen! There are people everywhere it is not like back home. All these people are draped in fabric. I thought I would enjoy it here but it seems like they are trying to change the person who I am. They have already made me wear these clothes and a hat but I still look so different to everyone else. No matter what they have done I just don't fit in...I am so lonely.

I did meet these elegant people called the king and queen. They were beautiful and decorated more than the wildest orchid!

I really miss home. Sometimes I just sit on the roof tops and stare into the sky imagining what it would be like to be back home. Sitting in the trees looking at the stars! You can't see the stars here there are too many clouds. I miss the island. I think it's time for me to come home, back where I belong.

Jemmy

Task: Write a diary entry in role as Jemmy Button explaining his time in England.

Things to include:

- How he is feeling
- What is happening – key events
- What you think Jemmy wants to do
