I can use illustration to make a prediction about what may happen next .

Look again at the first double page .

What might the change may have been?

What might have triggered it and what might be the consequences ?

How do the details in the illustration support your prediction ?

I live with my family in a city close to the sea. Every summer we used to spend many weekends at the beach. But we never go there anymore, because last year, our lives changed forever...
